

RISK DISCLOSURE

This document is a Risk Warning and is intended to inform the Client about the possible risks associated with transactions in the financial markets, as well as the likelihood of financial losses. The list of these risks is not exhaustive, since various unforeseen situations may arise during the performance of such operations.

All information provided, including opinions, news reviews, analytical materials, price data, etc., is solely market commentary and does not constitute investment advice. Trading Contracts for Difference (CFDs) involves high risks and may not be suitable for all investors. Traders need to make sure that they understand all financial and legal aspects and are willing to accept the risk of possible losses. If necessary, it is recommended to seek advice from an independent specialist.

2. Operations in international financial markets assume that any fluctuations in the prices of the underlying assets can significantly affect the state of the Client's trading account due to the use of leverage. If the market moves against the Client's position, he may incur losses that will be equal to or even exceed the amount of funds in his trading account. The client is fully responsible for assessing risks, managing money and choosing a trading strategy.

3. Many trading instruments are characterized by significant intraday price fluctuations, which can lead to both profits and losses on transactions. In periods of high volatility, reduced liquidity or other significant changes in market conditions that cause fluctuations in quotes by more than 5% in a short period of time, the Company has the right to fix the financial result of the Client's transactions at a price that deviates by no more than 5% from the initial change in quotes.

4. The Client assumes the risks of financial losses arising from failures of information, communication and electronic systems used in the execution of transactions.

5. The Client acknowledges that under market conditions that differ from normal, the processing of his orders and orders may take longer.

6. The Client assumes the risks of financial losses caused by force majeure, including but not limited to: strikes, riots, acts of terrorism, military actions, natural disasters, accidents, fires, floods, storms, hurricanes, power failures, software failures, which lead to the destabilization of one or more markets.

7. When conducting transactions with a high level of risk, the Client should take into account that there is always a possibility of both positive and negative deviations of the actual results from the expected ones, and this is due to many different factors.

8. In connection with the above, the Company strongly advises the Client to carefully analyze how the risks associated with activities in international financial markets correspond to his financial goals and capabilities.

9. The purpose of this Warning is not to dissuade the Client from participating in transactions in the international financial market, but to help to understand the risks associated with this and to make an informed decision regarding the strategy of interaction with the Company within the framework of the concluded agreement.